ASSET MICRO TRACKER stories

ASSET MICRO TRACKER, March 2019

Last March a robbery took place against a clothing store in Modena, Italy. The thieves managed to break into the warehouse, deactivating the alarms and obscuring the cameras. Among the stolen goods, without their knowing it was hidden Asset micro Tracker, which once detected the move has immediately sent an alert notification to the owner of the store, which displayed the location of the goods and warned the police. The police immediately went to the place where the gang had hidden their stolen goods, an abandoned cottage in the suburbs, managing to recover everything and to arrest the gang of thieves.

ASSET MICRO TRACKER, January 2019 - Warehouse burglary

Earlier this year, a gang of thieves robbed the warehouse of a major electronics chain in Manchester, England. The alarm had been deactivated, and camera recordings had been tampered with to make the criminals unrecognizable. After emptying the warehouse, the thieves loaded the stolen goods onto a truck and escaped. They would have managed to get away with it, if an Asset tracker had not been hidden among the stolen goods. The device allowed the owner to follow in real time the movement of the stolen goods, and the police stopped the gang while he was traveling across the border. It took only 20 minutes to recover the whole merchandise and bring the perpetrators to justice.
